THEIR POWDER PLOT

Both Houses in London Were to Have Been Blown Sky High.

GUY FAWKES ON DECK AGAIN

They Had a Big Score in Scotland and the Experts in Scotland Yard Are Up and at It.

Copyrighted 1895 by Associated Press.

London, Aug. 17.—Ever since Nov. 4, 1605, when a certain Guy Fawkes and others engineered such a scheme, but were detected and hanged, the possibility of a plot to blow up the house of parliament has been one of the pet scares of the British officials and regularly, year after year ever since, the vaults of the house of parliament, previous to the reassembling of the body, are formally searched for powder barrels with old-time ceremony minutely. This year, however, there was some slight show of cause for the apparently unnecessary precautions taken, for with the opening of parliament comes the discovery, real or imaginary, of a scheme to send the commoners and lords unexpectedly skyward in a body. Whether this story be true or not, the afternoon papers made quite a sensation out of the affair, and the inhabitants of this great metropolis have not done talking about it.

Simmered down to cold facts, it appears that there was some foundation for the report and it rested upon the following basis of fact: Some weeks ago the manager of a local printing and lithographing company was asked by a foreigner, described as "dark-looking and mysterious" (of course) to lithograph a weekly paper for a Turkish company. As no knowledge of the Turkish language was necessary for the job, the manager of the English concern undertook the contract and lithographed thousands of copies for the newspaper weekly, the paper being, however, two detectives from Scotland Yard arrived and called at the lithographing establishment and asked to see the manager. The latter appeared, all smiles, scenting some new business, but his jaw fell and he turned very white when he was aware that he was suspected of being implicated in a plot to blow up the house of parliament, and that his visitors hailed from Scotland Yard. In reply to the unfortunate manager's protests of innocence, the detectives explained that he had been printing in the gutters looking Turkish weekly a red-hot anarchist sheet, the literature calling upon socialists and others to combine for the purpose of blowing up the house of parliament upon the occasion of the opening session. One article actually stated that 16 men were already on their way to England from various points to make the necessary arrangements for sending the members of parliament and the peers of the realm skyward. In spite of the protests the terrified manager was escorted to Scotland Yard by the detectives, where he was confronted and examined by the chief of detectives and a police commissioner. To those the thoroughly frightened manager explained all the circumstances of the case, gave a full description of the "dark and mysterious looking" foreigner and established his innocence of any complicity in the treasonable publication and went on his way much relieved upon promising not to lithograph any more Turkish weeklies without first ascertaining the nature of their contents.

According to the Globe, the police got an inkling of the affair by the boasting of some London anarchists. But the story of this latest "gunpowder plot" is far from being as thrilling as it might have been, and there is a strong suspicion in more than one quarter that the Scotland Yard authorities have unearthed a mare's nest of the rankest description.

Facts which have leaked out respecting the meeting of Queen Victoria and Emperor William of Germany at private parties given by her majesty at Osborne during the Cowes regatta week show that the cordial relations which had been ruffled by the emperor's failure to consent the queen regarding the present czar's engagement to the czar, have again been restored, and the coolness has quite vanished. Queen Victoria has long been known as the great matchmaker of Europe. While at Coburg, with the queen and others, in April of last year, the occasion of the marriage of Princess Victoria Melita of Coburg and Gotha, the Grand Duke of Hesse took upon himself, without consulting anybody, to bring to a head the long pending but frequently deferred engagement of Princess Alix of Hesse to the then Czarovitch of Russia, and her majesty felt very much put out, as she fancied she was the first person to be consulted in such matters. This caused a coolness between herself and her imperial grandson, but during the dinner at Osborne the conversations of the two sovereigns were most animated and affectionate, those present noticing especially the great tenderness which the emperor displayed in assisting the queen to rise after the dinner and the gracious manner in which she accepted his help.

Considerable comment has been caused in certain circles by the announcement that William Brown, a nephew of the famous John Brown, who was for many years the Highland attendant of her majesty and for whom the queen had a high regard, has been appointed the queen's personal attendant. William Brown inherits to a certain degree the somewhat British manner of his distinguished uncle.

Emperor William's visit to Lowthre castle as the guest of Lord Lowndes has been one of increased activity, and in one day he traveled 70 miles by coach and steamer to see the lake and his country. During the first day's shooting the emperor bagged nearly 50 brace of grouse, and, although he is a capital shot, the precaution was taken to have the birds driven almost up to the muzzle of his gun.

MAY CHANGE BASE.

This Thing of Trying to Secure a Durrant Jury Is Decidedly Unsettling.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—On Monday the trial of Theodore Durrant will enter on its fifth week. All of the past week was spent in a vain effort to find a single satisfactory juror. As the case progresses the respective counsels find it more difficult to be satisfied with the veniremen. Anyone who seems acceptable to one side appears objectionable to the other on general principles. Counsel find it easy to dispose of objectionable veniremen without peremptory challenge. The defense has 12 of its 20 peremptory challenges left and returns have been made on nearly 1,000 veniremen. Should no progress be made next week the defense will probably renew its motion for a change of venue. If it can be shown that it is practically impossible to obtain a jury here the motion will be granted, as the details at the beginning of the trial was only provisional.

HIS OFF DAY.

Alex Graham's Sulky Horse Throws His Driver With Serious Results.

Special Dispatch to the Standard.

Billings, Aug. 17.—Alexander Graham, accountant in the First National bank, met with a serious accident this morning while driving his trotter. The horse took fright at something he saw and ran away, throwing his driver out of the sulky. Mr. Graham was dragged about 150 feet and his ear was torn off and he was otherwise badly bruised about the head and body. At present he is resting easily.

FITZ IS REAL MAD

HE SAYS CORBETT IS A COWARD AND A BULLY.

His Bull Dog Action in a Philadelphia Hotel Severely Condemned by the Long Boy From the Antipodes.

Buffalo, Aug. 17.—The Express has the following: Fitzsimmons is looking for revenge now, and he swears he will have it before the fight at Dallas, if an opportunity presents itself. "As for Corbett's cowardly actions in Philadelphia," says Bob, "I am amazed at the deliberate lying he has indulged in since. I would surely have resented his insults had not his heels jumped him. He is a man who is not a barroom fighter, but he is a fine champion, he is, and I am more than ever convinced that he doesn't want to meet me in the ring. He tried to avoid making the match with me until I forced him. Since the match was made, he has been playing bully, but he can't bully me. I am not fond of barroom fighting, and I didn't care to fight him as-as-you-please style. There's no money in that. I am sure my conduct will not be criticised. Corbett's insults will be resented in good time. The kang didn't happen to be around when Charley Mitchell called him down at Miner's theater. That's the reason he didn't fight Mitchell. His excuse was that he was a gentleman and not a barroom fighter. I'll get a chance at him when his heels are not around, I hope, but I'll bet everything I own right now that he increases his bodyguard from to-day on. Of course, I am not silly enough to tackle a dozen bullies."

TO THE POPULISTS.

This Gentleman Seeks to Deceive the President of Veto Power.

Denver, Aug. 17.—The Rocky Mountain News will print to-morrow an open letter to all populists, written by C. A. Power of Terre Haute, Ind., who organized the Cincinnati conference of 1891, which resulted in the Omaha convention and the national people's party. He describes the party's condition and reveals the objects to be sought, among the latter being an amendment to the constitution depriving the president of the veto power. In part the letter says:

"Since meeting in convention at Omaha, events have occurred that have materially changed the situation. Now, instead of government by the people, we find Caesarism full blown in the person of Grover Cleveland, governing the American people. In this emergency what shall we do? Drift with the tide, without an effort to reform our lines, or take on an additional load of political 'hodge podge,' made up of prohibition, socialism, single tax and Coexistism, and plunge blindly into the sea of absolute destruction at the next election?"

"If 100,000 populists will form clubs and agree to contribute 25 cents or more per month until the close of the campaign in 1896, national and state committees can be kept in the field and conduct an aggressive campaign throughout the union."

COULDN'T STAND IT.

Miss Evelyn Kills Herself After Her Former Lover Takes Another.

San Jose, Cal., Aug. 17.—Miss M. Evelyn McCormick, one of the most talented and best known artists of California, shot herself through the heart here to-night, and died almost instantly. Miss McCormick is said to have been engaged to Guy R. Rose, son of L. J. Rose, a wealthy citizen of Los Angeles. For some reason the engagement was broken and young Rose married a New York girl about three months ago. Grief over the termination of this engagement is thought to have been the cause of the suicide.

STORY OF THE RIOTS

A Survivor of the Recent Chinese Massacre Tells About It.

BRUTAL, INHUMAN FIENDS

It Was Indeed a Sorry Time for the Missionaries—Dr. Stevenson
Does Not Say That He Will Return.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 17.—Among the passengers on the Empress of Japan were Dr. Stevenson and family, missionaries at Szechuan, China, who narrowly escaped murder at the hands of the natives in the first of the recent riots. Dr. Stevenson belongs to a Canadian Methodist mission and is now en route to his home in Milton, Ont., having had to leave China owing to the ill-health of his wife, who is still suffering from the effects of the recent horrors. Dr. Stevenson said that the vicious official system of the empire is responsible for the persecution of the missionaries. Left to themselves, the people of Szechuan were peaceable and well disposed toward them. The missionaries had built a hospital in Cheng Tu, now destroyed, at considerable cost, and Dr. Stevenson was one of the doctors employed. On the 28th of May a placard was posted up, declaring that the foreigners had killed children for the oil in them. A request was made that these placards should be torn down and a few were torn down, though several persons objected. "Dr. Bilborn," continued the doctor, "was just filling Mr. Light's teeth and I was doing some light work about the dispensary when we heard some children yelling and throwing small stones. This was about 4:30 o'clock. We sent our cards at once to nearly all the yamens. They were received, except one sent to Payo Kichan, a man who followed up his refusal with a vicious proclamation. Dr. Kilborn had a double-barreled gun and I had a Martin rifle. We held the crowd at bay until the chairmen arrived, who promised to keep the street clear, adding that the officials would soon appear. Good liars, but bad police, they soon allowed the people to come right into the gate. Again we cleared the street. Our wives had picked up the babies in their nightclothes and ran to the hospital through a dividing wall, and we soon heard the crowds beating at the hospital gates on a back street. Dr. Kilborn blew a big hole through the top panel of the gate and frightened the crowd back. We now went into our dispensary building and tried to lock ourselves in, but we soon heard a roar and crash of glass on the dwelling side. We made several attempts to escape into an adjacent lot. We finally found a hole in the wall made by a stone thrown by a rioter. There was just room for one to get through the hole. I was the last to get out, and I pointed my rifle at a man who was yelling 'strike dead.'"

"While we were running out into the parade ground a brutal soldier kicked Mrs. Stevenson. I leveled again to follow it up there might have been another story to tell. Next day the party made their way to the China inland mission house, from where they watched the destruction of the two houses of the Canadian Methodist mission."

"The mob broke in and Mrs. Kilborn and Mrs. Hartwell, the children and Miss Brockhill and Ford escaped by ladders over the back wall. They entered a small house and bribed the owners to conceal them inside the bed curtains. For three hours they waited in terror while the work of destruction was going on about them. At night they succeeded in getting away.

"The same condition of affairs prevailed at the Episcopal and Roman Catholic missions. In all, eleven places were looted and the inhabitants barely escaped with their lives. The next day was exceedingly trying. The excited people assembled and threatened to kill the foreigners. By the fourth day the Tang Li Yamen at Peking had made the victory act and a still proclamation was issued. Eleven days after the riot all the British and American missionaries except Mr. Jackson left by boat for Chung King, the magistrate sending two or three officials and six small boat loads of soldiers as escorts. There is much sameness in the reports from the different towns, and there is no doubt that there was a general agreement among the rabble to drive out the missionaries."

LATE HAWAIIAN NEWS.

The Cable Scheme Looked Upon Favorably by the First Cons Derivation.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—The steamship Belgic arrived to-night from Yokohama via Honolulu. As the Belgic left Yokohama before the last Canadian Pacific steamer, she brought no new oriental news. Following are the advices to the associated press from Hawaii.

Honolulu, Aug. 10.—A cable proposition of a definite character has been made to the Hawaiian government by Col. C. S. Spaulding, a wealthy sugar planter, who recently returned from Europe. The offer seems to be made in good faith and has been received with favor by President Dole and his cabinet. The matter will come up in the senate on the 12th inst., and it is thought the upper house will ratify a contract for the construction of the cable. The proposition is to build from San Francisco or in the near vicinity to Honolulu. A branch line will be built connecting the other islands of the group. Spaulding wants $50,000 a year for the 20 years, the government to have the right to use both systems for the transmission of official messages free of charge up to the sum mentioned per annum reckoning at the regular rates charged. One clause provides for the exclusive privilege of landing cables on the territory for the term of 20 years, such privilege not to be construed, however, as conflicting with any rights the government of the United States may possess by virtue of any existing treaty.

The promoter agrees to have the cable in working order by October 21, 1895, if he is successful in obtaining subsidies from both the United States and Hawaii. The United States congress will be asked to appropriate $100,000 a year for 20 years. Colonel Spaulding says: "The general plan for carrying out the cable scheme is the organization of an American company to control and manage the same in the United States and to organize a company in Honolulu to control and manage the lines." The United States government will be asked to lend its aid and assistance by means of a subsidy or guarantee, and any arrangement made will be with the full approval and sanction of the government.

No additional claims have been made on the government arising out of the arrests made during last January. British Commissioner Hawes called on President Dole and spent an hour conversing on various topics. He did not present any claim on behalf of the British subjects, although it is understood that he will do so.

J. Mott Smith died this morning. He held many positions of trust under the monarchy. He was Hawaiian minister at Washington when the queen was de-throned.

IT IS A BAD START

LITTLE CHILDREN TAUGHT HOW TO STEAL.

A Five-Year-Old Tot Tells a Story of Youthful Depravity Stole 15 Pocketbooks in Three Days.

New York, Aug. 17.—One of the most amazing tales of youthful depravity that has ever been told has been brought to the attention of the police.

It was told by Sarah Russell, a 12-year-old product of the vilest tenement district in this city.

She was arrested in Central park and calmly announced that she was one of a band of 20 children, who, under the leadership of a 15-year-old girl named Ellie Kleiman, had learned how to pick pockets deftly and spent most of their time practicing the art.

The Russell girl, with a 5-year-old tot named Fanny Jones, were arrested in the act of picking a pocket. The Jones girl said:

"Bella Kleiman is a smart girl, and she told us how to take things out of people's pockets without their knowing it. When we knew how to do it, she sent us out, and we took as many pocket-books as we could and brought them to her. She always gave us a penny, and sometimes 2 cents. I took 15 pocket-books in three days. I always took a little girl along with me. Bella said it was better, because people wouldn't notice me then. Bella is awfully smart."

Sarah Russell was put into the care of the Gerry society.

BACK TO BERLIN.

Germany's Kaiser Gets Motherly Advice
From London Newspapers.

Special Berlin Letter, copyrighted 1895 by the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—The dull days are over and things are getting lively again in Berlin. The chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, and the Prussian minister of the interior, Baron von Koeller, have returned. The emperor arrived at Wild Park station on his return from England this morning. He looks remarkably well and his yachting and shooting expeditions have evidently agreed with him. The emperor will be present at the laying of the corner stone to the memory of his grandfather, Emperor William I, at the Schloss Friehtel to-morrow. The ceremony will be highly impressive. The emperor, later in the day, will attend the celebrations of the first grand reglement in memory of the battle of Gravelotte at Pottsdam. On Monday the big memorial celebration occurs on the Tempelhof field, where 40,000 veterans will parade.

Politically, the relations between Germany and England have almost monopolized public attention and are the occasion for a general discussion by the press. This has been brought about by several editorials in the London Standard and the Daily News, which were extremely distasteful to Germany. In fact, the Hanover Courier even went so far as to say that the emperor's periodical visits to England were merely served to increase British insolence. An article in the Standard especially advising the emperor that his aim ought to be to show himself worthy of his maternal ancestor has aroused a perfect storm of indignation. The memorial celebration of the battle fought against the French, in August, 1870, continues to be the order of the day. The various battle fields around Metz are being visited by thousands of veterans and other visitors. The city council of Berlin has voted $9,000 marks for a public celebration of Sedan day, the only members opposing the motion being the socialists, who spoke of "the bloody deed of war needlessly undertaken." The city councils of Cologne, Dresden, Barmen and Stuttgart have voted 10,000, 25,000, 20,000 and 6,000 marks respectively for the same purpose.

Herr Krupp, the famous gunmaker, has given a million marks to his workmen's pension fund, in honor of the present memorial time. Prince Bismarck, who has declined to take part in to-morrow's fest, is still enjoying absolute rest. He occupies himself with the affairs of his estate and declines to see all deputations.

IT'S A CASE IN POINT

The Oaks Receivers Run Against Another Little Snag.

LIMITS TO THEIR POWERS

They Are Placed Under Restraints
Which Can Be Turned to Account in the Case to Be Heard in Seattle.

Special Dispatch to the Standard.

St. Paul, Aug. 17.—Another sensational chapter in the Northern Pacific receivership case was opened in a decision today by the United States court of appeals in Chicago. This is the court of final jurisdiction. The opinion was prepared by Judge Caldwell and assented to by Judges Sanborn and Thayer. Referring to the original appointment of Northern Pacific receivers by Judge Jenkins, the opinion says: "It is obvious that if an individual or private business corporation had conveyed its property to another for the same purpose and upon the same trusts that the court was asked to take this property and did take it, the law would have stamped the conveyance as one made to hinder and delay creditors, and fraudulent and void for that reason." Under any circumstances this would be strong language. When used by the court of appeals, it is of course of great importance. It is now pushing against the Northern Pacific in Seattle.

The language of the court was used in the decision sought originally by Charles Scott against the Northern Pacific. On the suit he recovered judgment for $115,500. Satisfaction of the judgment was resisted on the ground that the road was in the hands of receivers and Scott's judgment was shown out by the lower Dakota court on this ground. Right here another very important legal question was finally settled. The decision was largely on this point, the court of appeals deciding that although the Dakota court was an auxiliary to the court which originally appointed receivers, it still had full powers to satisfy judgments and aid in the collection of debts on all such property of the company as was not embraced in the mortgage under which the receivers were appointed.

This decision is of great importance and runs so counter to accepted precedent that its main point is given below in full: "So the court may, upon proper showing, appoint a receiver to take into his possession and control the mortgaged property, but the jurisdiction is possessed by a court of chancery to foreclose a mortgage and appoint a receiver for the mortgaged property pending the foreclosure, gives it no jurisdiction or power to seize or take into custody or control through a receiver, otherwise, the property of the debtor which is not covered by the mortgage. Nor can the court in such a suit rightfully make any order that will prevent, hinder or delay the other creditors of the property from exercising their rights in the property not included in the mortgage to the payment of their debts. It is clear therefore that so far as relates to the receivership in the foreclosure suit, the intervenor was entitled to an order discharging the land mentioned from the custody of the receivers and granting him leave to sell the same on execution to satisfy his judgment."

The remarks quoted above were called incidentally, but indicate beyond all question what the judges will decide if the legality of the appointment is called into question.

SILVER SENTIMENT.

Ohio Democrats Up and at It—Puffer
Squared Sibley Interviewed.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 17.—The democratic county convention elected Alfred Whittaker chairman by a decisive vote over James Lawrence. This indicates the delegation from this county to the democratic state convention would be free silver and anti-Brice.

Whittaker was elected chairman by a vote of 274 to 189 for Lawrence. A motion by a free silver delegate to appoint a committee of seven to select the delegates to the state convention caused a row that for a time threatened to result in more than a war of words. The Brice men, headed by James Lawrence, retired from the hall to hold a "rump" convention. After their withdrawal a committee of seven to select delegates to the state convention was appointed. It is composed entirely of free silver and anti-Brice men. Seventy-five seceders organized and elected 53 delegates to the state convention. Resolutions were adopted condemning the methods pursued by the so-called regular convention and three cheers were given for Brice.

Resolutions were passed by the regular convention opposing Calvin S. Brice as the United States senator, and favoring the free coinage of silver. Minneapolis, Aug. 17.—A state official who wrote Senator Puffer of Kansas, asking him whether he had gone back on free silver, received a reply this morning denouncing "the partisan newspaper press" and asserting emphatically the silver cause was not dying out but far from dying. It was like a volcano which could not be suppressed by the covering of the crater. The belief in the East that it was dying out, he added, was due to the fact that it had now passed the pyrotechnic stage of noise and demonstration.

Denver, Aug. 17.—A special to the Times to-day from Washington says: Sibley, the candidate for president, has arrived here en route from North Carolina. He indignantly denounced the statement that the sentiment expressed in the Bimetallist league's platform is dying out. "If there is anything the matter," he said, "it is growing too fast. It is growing faster than we can organize. The people have been educated sufficiently to make the country overwhelmingly for free coinage of silver at 16 to 1. What is needed is organization. I am satisfied if we could get a vote directly on this question without reference to anything else, we could carry both New York and Pennsylvania for free silver by a large majority."

Sibley will make a few speeches in his own state, and then go to Kentucky to take part in the gubernatorial fight.

COMPLETE SHUT-DOWN.

The Coke-Mines Closed—Amateur
Opera Adversely Rendered.

Special Dispatch to the Standard.

Livingston, Mont., Aug. 17.—A complete shut-down of the Cokedale coal mines and 1000 men took place to-day. Superintendent Wickes arrived from Helena this morning and to-morrow will pay off and lay off all employees, nearly 300 in number. Nothing is known here to-night as to the cause of the shut down or what its duration will be.

The recent fire, however, has nothing to do with the suspension of operations at this time, as the shut down on Aug. 17 has been in contemplation by the company for six weeks. Some of the customers placed orders for coke with the Montana Coal & Coke company at Horst several weeks ago.

The Bozeman amateurs, a musical and dramatic organization of great merit, comprising 15 ladies and gentlemen, the beauty and chivalry of Bozeman, delighted a large audience at the opera house in this city to-night in the presentation of "The Little Tycoon," an American-Japanese comic opera. The company was assisted by Mrs. A. H. Hersey, the gifted soprano of Helena, and John F. Firch, the talented tenor of Butte, whose singing set the audience wild with delight. The performance was the finest musical extravaganza given here in many a day and would do credit to professionals.

SHE'S AN OLD GIRL

BUT IS STILL STEALING AT THE AGE OF EIGHTY-FIVE.

It Is Said That She Is an Old-Time Offender—Her Picture Adorns the Rogues' Gallery.

New York, Aug. 17.—Mary Fitzgerald, 85 years old, was arrested for pocket-picking.

While a crowd watched the members of the labor unions who were in sympathy with the locked-out capsmakers, form in line, Policeman McCarthy saw her, he says, pick the pocket of a woman's pocket. He could not see what she took, but shortly after he saw her, he says, take something from the pocket of another woman. As she was pushing her hand out of the pocket of a third woman, McCarthy tapped her on the shoulder.

"Old lady, I will have to take you to the station house," he said.

"But I'm a poor, lone body," the old woman remonstrated.

She wanted to know if she was being arrested. McCarthy told her that she was wanted for a witness. She went quietly enough, but when she got to the station she objected to being searched. In the pocket her skirt were found three pocketbooks. Each one of them contained small sums. The old woman stoutly maintained that she was the owner of all three pocketbooks, but she was unable to produce them. McCarthy tapped her on the shoulder.

When in court several policemen said she was an old-time offender. She is, they said, not only a pickpocket, but has spent several years in prison for shoplifting and petty larceny. Her picture is in the rogues' gallery.
